THE FIGHT AT CHICKAMAUGA.

It is published in a journal of the Southern States, N. Y., N. O., and in page 227 an illustration of the Southern of war. It is published in the Southern States, N. Y., N. O., and in page 227 an illustration of the Southern of war. It is published in the Southern States, N. Y., N. O., and in page 227 an illustration of the Southern of war.

The illustration of the fight at Chickamauga, Georgia, is a fine example of the art of the lithographer. It shows the Southern soldiers in a state of confusion and retreat, with their ranks broken and their arms scattered. The scene is set in a wooded area, with the smoke of battle rising in the air. The artist has captured the chaos and the intensity of the moment with great skill and detail.

LEUTENANT MARTIN S.A.A. IN ACTION, THE "WHITTAKER"
(Photographed at New York, N.Y.)

Lieutenant Martin S.A.A. was born in New York, May 25, 1835, and was 26 years of age. He was a member of the 1st New York Cavalry, and was killed at the battle of Chickamauga, Georgia, on September 20, 1862. He was a brave and gallant soldier, and his death was a great loss to his country. The illustration shows him in a state of action, with his arms raised and his face set in a determined expression.
